

COLUMBIA ADDS 2,000 GRADUATES TO ITS LONG LIST

Many Women Share Honors of University's 160th Annual Commencement.

BUTLER ON LIBERTY.

Restriction Has Usurped Its Place, President Says—Honorary Degrees for Many.

In all the ceremony of cap and gown, the dignity of faculty, of student and of distinguished guest, the celebration of the senior class, the graduation of the freshmen in his address, Columbia University celebrated today its one hundred and sixtieth annual commencement. The institutions which joined to make it a university celebration were Columbia College, Barnard College, the Teachers College and the Schools of Engineering. The graduates numbered two thousand, a great number of them young women.

The ceremony was conducted with the customary impressiveness of occasion and award. The lighter touches were furnished by the presence of a flower-guard of femininity, from the fond mother, watching her boy reap his four years' sowing, to the not less fond young miss with an interest in a first year fadling. HONORARY DEGREES CONFERRED ON WELL KNOWN MEN.

The classes of the university gathered at the library and in a body, headed by the faculty, marched to the gymnasium where the exercises were held.

After an overture, a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Knox, chaplain of the university, and an address by President Nicholas Murray Butler, the degrees were conferred upon the graduates. After them came the candidates for honorary degrees, who were presented by John Franklin, Ph.D., university orator. The distinguished persons to receive these degrees and the honors conferred upon them were: Master of arts, William Williams, sometime Commissioner of Immigration at this port and Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity; doctor of music, Walter Johannes Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony Society; doctor of letters, Edward Livermore Burroughs, editor of Scribner's Magazine; doctor of sacred theology, the Rev. William Montague Gair of the class of 1888; doctor of science, Aristotle Agrimonis of the class of 1892; professor of bacteriology and experimental pathology in the university of Havana, Cuba; doctors of law, John M. Finley, Commissioner of Education of the State of New York; Seth Low, eleventh President of the university and trustee; Jean Perrin, Ph.D., professor of physical chemistry in the University of Paris, visiting French professor; Joseph Schumpeter, Litt. D., Professor of Political Economy in the University of Graz, visiting Austrian professor; and Karl P. Rathgen, Litt. D., professor of political economy in the Central Institute, Hamburg, Kaiser Wilhelm professor.

PRESIDENT BUTLER'S ADDRESS ON LIBERTY.

President Butler in his address to the graduating class recited the dedication of liberty given by Robespierre in 1793 as "the power which of justice, belongs to every man to choose his ruler in justice, the limits are the rights of others, its principles are known from nature itself, its protection is to the law." Then he said: "But during the years that have passed we have moved far away from this view of what is important in life. Not liberty, but regulation and restrictions are the watchwords of to-day, and they are made so in what is sincerely believed to be the greater public interest. John Stuart Mill, in his classic essay on Liberty, saw, and described these tendencies nearly fifty years ago, but even his clear vision did not foresee the length to which restrictions on Liberty have now been carried. "Just as the driving force of an engine is to be found in the steam chest and not in the brake, so the driving force in civilization will be found in Liberty and not in restriction. The cycle will, in due time, after colossal waste of energy and of accomplishment, complete itself, and Liberty will once more displace regulation and restriction as the dominant idea in the minds of men. It is worth your while to take note, therefore, that while Liberty is not new in the development of human thinking and human action it cannot long be kept out of the place which of right and of necessity belongs to it."

After the termination of the formal exercises, the presentation of a memorial tablet by '44 Miners and '98 College and Mines, and of a statue of "The Hammerman," by '99 Miners, there was an alumni luncheon and a further diversion in a baseball game at South Field, between Columbia and the University of Pennsylvania. A luncheon bookstall dinner was arranged for the evening.

MITCHEL IS STUDYING VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS

Declares New York Institutions Are to Be Greatly Extended and Enlarged.

CHICAGO, June 2.—John Purroy Mitchel, Mayor of New York, who is in Chicago to make a study of vocational training in the public schools, had this city's technical high schools as his objective to-day. Mr. Mitchel also allotted a portion of the day to an inspection of the Chicago municipal court system.

"New York has vocational schools, but they are to be extended and enlarged," said Mr. Mitchel. "The Chicago schools have a high reputation and we think we can learn much from them."

Mr. Mitchel was accompanied by Thomas Churchil, President of the New York Board of Education, and other New York educational officials.

HEARD THE FIRE BELL AND ENDED HIS LIFE

Man Accused of Hiring Firebugs Takes Fatal Dose of Acid.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., June 1.—Jacob Rosen, who was on bail on a charge of having hired two men to set fire to a building owned by him in Orange, was found dying from carbolic acid poisoning at his home, No. 14 Early street, this morning after he had heard the fire bells ring for a fire in a barn. His son, Isaac, says that his father had been sick all night. When the fire bells sounded his father, the son says, got up and looked out of his bedroom window. Some time afterward he was found in a state of collapse. Rosen died soon afterward.

Rosen was arrested in his wife's grocery store, of which he was manager, on May 14. He came here from Waterbury, Conn., ten years ago.
